DESIGN IN COLOUR

Restrained yet warm, the colours of this house match its architectural aesthetic.

Overlooking the Tasman Sea in a part of New Plymouth that feels like a beach town, the design behind this house manages a series of dichotomies with aplomb. Social zones are downstairs; a more intimate retreat for family life upstairs. While it's contemporary, it's also warm, with timber cabinetry and natural textures offsetting the concrete and steel.

Throughout, Resene Half Black White offers an unassuming presence in both private and public spaces, the open and the more intimate – a neutral backdrop for art and furniture. In the powder rooms, meanwhile, the enveloping grey-green hues of Resene Half Smalt Blue create an entirely unexpected change.
