

With a taste of summer

Colour packs a punch in this lively kitchen, which features complementary Resene shades

After a generation of neutrals, colour is making a strong comeback in our homes. And it's not just accessories providing the wow factor – colourful kitchen cabinets and splashbacks are also turning heads.

This kitchen by award-winning designer Mal Corboy teams Resene Whizz Bang – a bright burnt orange – with Resene Kumutoto, a soft sea blue. The blue cabinets complement a bamboo pattern imprinted on glass.

Karen Warman, Resene marketing manager, says people are becoming a lot more adventurous when it comes to colour.

“They want their homes to be a little different,” she says. “They are not afraid to make a statement with their home interiors, and they want these to reflect their personalities.”

For authentic Resene colours on cabinetry, Warman recommends Resene ArmourCat, which comes in a range of colours, metallic and clear finishes especially designed for cabinetry, shelving and benchtops. Walls are best painted in Resene SpaceCote Low Sheen Kitchen & Bathroom, which is formulated with anti-bacterial silver and MoulDefender to protect against bacteria and mould.
