A spectacular view of Brisbane's Story Bridge inspired the palette in this penthouse apartment – the walls are in Resene Masala

Sparkling city lights can be just as dramatic as an expansive view by day, especially when that view encompasses a renowned landmark, such as the Story Bridge in Brisbane.

This New Farm penthouse, built by Multispan Australia with interior design by Phorm Interiors, has precisely such an outlook. And it was this spectacular view that prompted the interior colour palette.

The design team says they wanted to encapsulate the bridge within the space. To this end they specified Resene Masala for the walls in the living area – the colour was chosen to complement the industrial hues of the steel.

Together with the upholstered walls, custom-coloured carpets, granite benchtops, timber veneer and shutters painted in Resene Alabaster, the vibrancy of the Story Bridge is felt throughout the apartment. The designers also say the furnishings were chosen to extend the gallery feel created by the Resene Masala backdrop.

Resene SpaceCote Low Sheen, a waterborne enamel, is recommended for broadwalls, such as this. Resene Lustacryl semi-gloss is recommended for trim and joinery, such as the shutters.
