

Below The semi-enclosed lift lobbies at Fonterra's new offices achieve a bright feel with Resene Double Alabaster wall finishes.

ARCHITECTURAL ALLY

The crisp white wall surfaces in the lift lobbies at the new Fonterra offices are by Resene, a company that underpins New Zealand design in many ways

Off-whites are a versatile backdrop for offices, allowing occupants to add their own finishing touches. In Fonterra's fit-out, the lift lobbies and meeting room exteriors feature Resene Double Alabaster, from the Resene Whites & Neutral collection. However, Resene does even more for the country's designers than provide high quality wall and ceiling finishes.

An integral part of the commercial architecture industry in New Zealand, Resene is also behind key events in the design community's calendar.

For example, it sponsors the prestigious Resene Timber Design Awards – an annual event that showcases the best and most innovative in architects and designers working with this sustainable material.

Resene also supports the Resene Architecture and Design Film Festival – a showing of international films focussed on the world of architecture and design generally.
