Resene art with Mark Rayner – 33

Use a combination of complementary Resene colours to create this simple modern wall feature.

You will need:

- 300mm x 900mm stretched canvas artist's panels (x3)
- Masking tape
- Paintbrush
- Paint roller and tray
- Resene Multishield+ flat
- Resene Multishield+ gloss
- Resene SpaceCote Flat waterborne enamel tinted to Resene Midnight Express
- Resene Testpots in the following colours: Resene Pizazz, Resene Trinidad and Resene Yellow Sea
- Tape measure

Step one

Prepare the wall (priming, if necessary, with an appropriate Resene primer) and paint with two coats of Resene Midnight Express, allowing two hours for each coat to dry.

Step two

Paint the first panel with two coats of Resene Pizazz, allowing two hours for each coat to dry.

Step three

Paint the second panel with two coats of Resene Trinidad, allowing two hours for each coat to dry.

Step four

Paint the third panel with two coats of Resene Yellow Sea, allowing two hours for each coat to dry.

Step five

Align the panels side by side, and place two lengths of masking tape across the three panels, 300mm from each end, as shown.

Step six

Apply one coat of Resene Multishield+ flat to one end of the panels, as shown.

Step seven

Before the Resene Multishield+ flat dries, carefully remove the masking tape.

Step eight

Apply one coat of Resene Multishield+ gloss to the other end of the panels, and remove the masking tape before it dries. Leave to dry for two hours before hanging.

To get the look:

Mark positioned the panels approximately 40mm apart and hung each one from two panel pins.

Other ideas:

Try lightly stippling Resene Multishield+ flat and Resene Multishield+ gloss onto a single coloured panel to create a subtle reflective surface.
